NICK MILETI

... A Book Worth Reviewing

Nick Mileti's favorite book review is by an eight year old which says in its entirety, "This book told me more about seals than I wanted to know."

The energetic Mileti often uses that review to end speeches musing that, "I'm sure you (the audience) have heard more about Nick Mileti than you wanted to hear."

Although the 43 year old attorney may prefer passing off his record of accomplishment lightly, he has written a story unmatched in the development of sports enterprises.

For one individual to own three major league franchises in a single market is unique unto itself. But for that same individual to also own a magnificent new facility for his hockey and basketball teams and a 50,000 watt clear channel radio station borders on the incredible. And, he has done it all in full view of the home town fans.

Nick Mileti grew up on Cleveland's southeast side. He graduated from John Adams High and headed for Bowling Green State University (BA) and The Ohio State University College of Law (Juris Doctor). It was his deep loyalty to Bowling Green as an active alumnus some years later, that turned his interest to the Cleveland Arena and professional sports. It was a game at the Arena between Bowling Green and Niagara which Mileti arranged and promoted in 1967 that revealed to him the tremendous need for big time sports here.

In September of 1968, he purchased the hockey Barons and Arena and the first chapter was underway. Mileti then went about his work and things began to happen.

Major league franchises in hockey and basketball were created; then, the baseball Indians were acquired and kept here; one of the country's premier radio stations, 3WE and its affiliate 105M, were purchased; and The Coliseum stands when skeptics said it would not.

Nick Mileti has kept his word. His accomplishments have renewed excitement in the fans of Northeast Ohio who have watched each chapter unfold. The story is a matter of record.

It is well worth reviewing.

BILL FITCH

GENERAL MANAGER AND COACH

"The best team in our five years in the NBA."

That's the way General Manager and Coach Bill Fitch appraises his 1974-75 edition of the Cleveland Cavaliers as he moves them into their new home, The Coliseum. "I feel we will be a greatly improved team this season, although we lost Lenny Wilkens, our captain and leader, and who in my opinion was one of the finest guards to play the game," Fitch says.

Fitch, who has been the Cavaliers only coach since they were formed five seasons ago and is the only expansion mentor who is still at the helm of a team, added the duties of general manager last season finding himself deeply involved in all areas of running a basketball team, both off and on the hardwood.

The quick-to-quip General Manager and Coach, admits that the early road schedule this season will be tough but at the same time it should help his new people to get it all together before they open their home season in the new Coliseum. "If we keep our won and lost record close to respectable up to the All-Star break in mid-January, we could make it mighty interesting for everyone down the stretch of the season," he says.

Fitch will have virtually a veteran squad on the floor this campaign with a team that was coming on strong at the latter stages of the 1973-74 season. Add these veterans to newcomers such as Jim Chones, who may well be the "big man" the Cavaliers have been looking for at the pivot spot, and the poise and finesse of veteran native Ohioan Dick Snyder, plus a blend of rookies such as Cleveland No. 1 draft choice, Michael (Campy) Russell, Clarence (Foots) Walker and Mike Robinson, the Cavaliers could well make this their winning year.

Returning from last year's team are the likes of Austin Carr, one of the better guards in the league; second season Jim Brewer who came on like a roaring locomotive in the final half of last year; quick cat-like Jimmy Cleamons; powerful and strong Dwight Davis; experienced Fred Foster; big Steve Patterson, who found a "home" at center last year; sharp-shooting Bobby (Bingo) Smith; always ready to come off the bench Johnny Warren, and the Cavs only seven footer in their history Luke Witte, plus the untapped reservoir of rookies, the Cavaliers could well thrive in '75.

Prior to coming to the Cavaliers, Fitch had a solid base of over 16 years of coaching in the college ranks. He posted winning marks at every stop on his way to becoming major domo of the Cleveland club.

A native of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Bill attended Coe College in his home town, starring in basketball and baseball. He received his Bachelor of Science degree in Physical Education from Coe in 1954.

Fitch started his coaching career as the head baseball and basketball assistant at Creighton University. It was at Creighton where he coached the star pitcher Bob Gibson in both baseball and basketball. Bill earned his Master of Arts degree in Educational Psychology at Creighton in 1958 and took his first head basketball coaching post at his alma mater, Coe. At Coe he had a 49-37 record.

Then it was on to North Dakota University where his teams went to the NCAA College Division finals for three years running. His three years at North Dakota University had his teams earning a 68-15 record with his last season there, 1967, being ranked third nationally by the UPI.

Bowling Green was next on the road to the Cavaliers and Fitch took over at B.G. in the summer of 1967. Taking a team that had finished last in 1966, he led his club to the Mid-American Conference title with a 10-2 league mark and 18-7 overall and was edged out of the NCAA tournament by Marquette by a single point.

The last college post held by the Cavs mentor was at the University of Minnesota where he led the Gophers for two seasons. Picked in the early season polls for the bottom rung of the Big Ten standings. Fitch brought on his club to a fifth place wind-up with a 12-12 mark. His final season at Minnesota found him posting a 13-11 record with Jim Brewer playing on the team and joining Bill as the Cavs No. 1 draft choice in 1973.

Bill, his wife Margaret, and their three daughters live in the Cleveland suburb of Bay Village.

JIMMY RODGERS

ASSISTANT COACH AND CHIEF SCOUT

Criss-crossing the country to look "in" on N.B.A. teams early in the season and then when the collegiate cage world hits a cresendo, Jimmy Rodgers can be found in attendance at games from coast-to-coast. Rodgers is starting his fourth season as assistant coach and chief scout of the Cavaliers.

Plus scouting duties, Rodgers assists General Manager and Coach Bill Fitch in coaching the Cavaliers whenever he is able to join the team. It is Rodgers who aids in making determinations on the college crop of cagers available for the N.B.A. draft held each spring.

He was a three-year starter on the University of Iowa basketball team. Following graduation, he assumed the duties as assistant to Cavaliers General Manager and Coach Fitch at North Dakota University. He then took over as mentor of the North Dakota team when Fitch left in 1967. His record at North Dakota was 39-35.

Before joining the Cavaliers, he was assistant at the University of Arkansas for a year, and then rejoined Fitch for his post with the Cavaliers in June of 1971.

Married, Jimmy and his wife Donna have two sons, Matt and Tim.

TRAINER

Trainer of the Cleveland Cavaliers is Charlie Strasser, an active member of the National Athletic Trainers Association. Strasser, who is a graduate of the University of Indiana, with a bachelor of science degree in physical education, joined the Cavaliers after serving as trainer in the Los Angeles Dodgers baseball organization.

The 24 year old Strasser started his career as a trainer with the Los Angeles baseball system at Daytona Beach, Florida, in 1972 and then spent the winter with the Licey Tigers at Santo Domingo in the Dominican Republic winter baseball league.

The native of Buffalo, New York, moved to the Waterbury, Connecticut, double "A" baseball team in 1973, and returned to the Dominican Republic that winter for a second season with the Licey Tigers.

This summer he was with the Waterbury Dodgers team again and did volunteer work at St. Mary's Hospital in Waterbury teaching taping techniques to physical therapists.

While at the University of Indiana, he was president of Phi Epsilon Kappa, professional fraternity in the field of physical education, health and recreation.

Strasser is married. He and his wife, Alice, now make their home in Cleveland.

Cavaliers On Radio and Television

Joe Tait returns to his microphone as the "Voice of the Cavaliers" for the fifth year. Tait has been describing the action of the Cavs since their inception. This year, for the third season in a row, the Cavaliers action will be on Radio Station WWWE.

Eighteen Cavalier games are to be telecast by WUAB-TV Channel 43. Joe Tait, Jerry Healy, and Jim Lessig, former Cavalier assistant coach, will be handling the audio portion of the telecasts for the 18 games.

First Round Selection in 1973 College Draft

Jim Brewer moves into his second season in the NBA with all systems "go" for the former University of Minnesota star, who displayed tremendous physical strength and quickness as a rookie. He displayed strong rebounding and excellent defense last year and continued improvement will make him one of the finest in the circuit.

The Cavaliers second year man is an intense individual who wants to be the best in no matter what it may be. He has a purpose for everything he does.

He came to the Cavaliers as their first round selection in the 1973 college draft after a brilliant career at the University of Minnesota. He had been recruited for the Gophers by Cavaliers General Manager/Coach Bill Fitch, who was then coach of the Minnesota team.

Brewer was named to the second NBA "Rookie team" last spring. Last summer he played in the Los Angeles summer league, along with teammates Austin Carr and Fred Foster.

Last year he grabbed a total of 524 rebounds for a 6.4 per game average, and along with Bobby Smith, was the only other player on the squad to play the full 82 games. He was used at both center and forward, ending the year at the strong forward spot.

First Round Selection in 1971 College Draft

Austin Carr, the Cavaliers all-time leading scorer with 4,371 points, is in his fourth season with Cleveland, as the former Notre Dame ace has taken over in four categories on the all-time point production list for the club. Carr has the highest per game average of any Cavalier ever with 21.1.

The soft-spoken, amiable Carr set a new club record last year when he hit for 1,775 points and a new high of 21.9 per game. He holds the Number 1 spot in the club's history in field goals made at 1,831 and field goals attempted, 4,151. An excellent offensive player, Carr has a variety of moves going to the hoop. Going into this season he has a total of 882 assists for an average of 3.9. His all-time single game high is 40 against Houston two years ago. Last year he hit for 39 against Atlanta there on December 22nd.

Carr, who is referred to by his teammates as "A.C.", had played in 156 straight games before being sidelined for a single game last season.

The Cavaliers Number 1 draft choice in 1971 is just starting to tap his reservoir of talent which is unlimited. A determined performer from his guard spot, Carr is destined to be one of the game's greats. He was selected to the All-Star Eastern Conference squad last year and was on the Rookie All-Star team in 1972.

While at Mackin High in Washington, D.C., he lettered in basketball, baseball and cross-country and captained his basketball and baseball team, the latter from his shortstop post, in his senior year. He was All-American at Notre Dame.

Carr spent the past summer playing in the Los Angeles Summer League along with teammates Jim Brewer and Fred Foster.

Fred Foster, the type of player who makes things happen, starts his seventh season in the NBA and his second with Cleveland after being signed as a free agent on October 27, 1973. The 6'5" veteran is very strong on defense and possesses an accurate shot.

Last year he came off the bench for the Cavaliers and played in 58 games and hit for a 4.8 average on his 278 points. He has a lifetime average of 8.6 in the 391 NBA games he has played.

He broke into the NBA after a brilliant career at Miami University of Ohio where he ranks as one of the school's all-time greats. He started his pro career with the old Cincinnati Royals where he played for two seasons after being drafted third in 1968.

He was then traded by Cincinnati along with Connie Dierking to Philadelphia for Darrall Imhoff and a future draft choice on October 16, 1970 and then by Philadelphia to Portland for a future draft choice, and to Detroit for Terry Dischinger on July 31, 1972.

Foster's all-time high is a 32 point outburst. Last year with Cleveland he fired a season top for himself of 21 against Buffalo here on February 10th.

Last summer he played in the Los Angeles summer league along with teammates Austin Carr and Jim Brewer.
